I. INTRODUCTION

A. Reference Books

1. In supplying this intensive list of books, the intention has been to be of service to the teacher:
   a. to help in the purchasing of new books,
   b. to help locate additional references in libraries,
   c. to facilitate the use of alternate references when a particular reference is not available, and
   d. to provide greater efficiency in suggesting references for student research.
2. The references listed are suggested, but not mandatory.
3. Teachers are encouraged to appraise books before purchase and to send their comments to the Home Economics Consultant, Department of Education. (Those books which may be borrowed from the Department of Education Home Economics Library for previewing are indicated with a check mark in the following charts).
4. Please note that publishers names are coded and a complete listing with addresses appears on pages C & T - 107 - 114.

B. Commercial Sources

1. Many firms require that teachers when making orders for teaching resources:

   a. use the official school stationary,

and

   b. specify that the teaching resources are to be used for classroom instruction.

2. There are continuous changes in the availability of these teaching resources and sources must therefore be contacted annually.

3. Please note that a complete list of addresses for commercial firms and other agencies appears on pages C & T - 123 - 126.

D. Creative Handicrafts Section

Although there is no definite outline concerning the use of crafts in the curriculum guide, it is suggested that this is an integral part of clothing and textiles. The teacher will appreciate the value of crafts to the student and will encourage creative projects relevant to current fashion and within the capability of the student.

I. INTRODUCTION

A. Reference Books

The reference books are divided into the junior and senior high school levels, and some of them are especially recommended for certain levels and sections of the Food Science courses.

Please note that a complete list of publishers addresses appears on pages F S 75 - 77.

B. Teaching Resources

Many firms require that teachers, when making orders for teaching resources:

1. use the official school stationery,

and

2. specify that the teaching resources are to be used for classroom instruction.

It should be noted that there are continuous changes in the availability of these teaching resources and sources must therefore be contacted annually.

A list of addresses for commercial firms and other agencies appear on pages F S 115 - 119.

I. INTRODUCTION

The reference books for Modern Living are divided into two sections for junior and senior high school levels.

Addresses for most of the publishers are listed in the "Clothing and Textiles" and "Food Science" sections of this book (see pages C&T 107-114 and FS 75-77) but any addresses which do not appear in those sections are listed in this part of the book on page M L - 181.

Many firms require that teachers, when making orders for teaching resources

a. use the official school stationery,

and

b. specify that the teaching resources are to be used for classroom instruction.

A list of addresses for commercial firms and other agencies appears on page M L - 185.
